Peterson, Saints visit Vikings, in made-for-TV season opener

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — When Adrian Peterson wore purple, the revered running back was naturally off limits for Minnesota's defense during practice.

"But now it's a must," Vikings cornerback Xavier Rhodes said. "You have to tackle him. It's going to be pretty fun."

Such will be the strange sight in Minnesota on Monday night, when Peterson lines up in the New Orleans backfield with his white, black and gold Saints jersey and his old friends eagerly eyeing him up from the other side.

"Everson Griffen. Without a doubt," Peterson said, predicting the Vikings player most interested in making contact with the franchise's all-time leading rusher.

"He's my boy, but we went back and forth in practice a lot, and he talks a lot of trash. I'm kind of quiet. I don't say much. But he'll be amped up to try to hit me."

Griffen will have plenty of help, when the Vikings host Peterson and the Saints in a season opener overflowing with made-for-TV story lines.

"I'm not going to back down from him," Rhodes said. "He told me that we're going to see how that ends."

How Peterson's remarkable career concludes remains a mystery, though at age 32 it's clearly in the twilight stage regardless of his freak-of-nature physical condition and lifelong spirit of determination. He'll start with the Saints as a part-time player, with the established Mark Ingram and the rookie Alvin Kamara sharing the carries and catches out of the backfield in this Drew Brees-led, pass-first offense.

"I think it'll be an adjustment for a couple weeks going in, because I'm used to being in there at all times," Peterson said, adding: "I knew what I was getting myself into. I know there's going to be times when I carry the load and there's going to be times when the load is not as heavy, you know?"

After Peterson was limited to 72 yards on 37 carries by a right knee injury and a leaky offensive line last season, the Vikings predictably declined the $18 million option on his contract and signed free agent Latavius Murray from Oakland instead.

Then they drafted Dalvin Cook out of Florida State. Peterson eventually picked the Saints for the opportunity to play close to his east Texas roots and suburban Houston home and behind the 10-time Pro Bowler Brees.

While Peterson will be plenty motivated in his return to Minnesota against a Vikings team not cool with him stealing their show, the prime-time kickoff and national TV audience for the start to another season will ultimately steer the emotions of the participants on both sides.

"I think that's enough excitement and enough reason to be playing all out," Saints coach Sean Payton said.

Here are some other angles to follow around the game:

STILL GOING STRONG

Brees led the NFL in passing yards for a record seventh time in 2016. In five games against the Vikings, he's 4-1 with a 69 percent completion rate and an average of 294 yards passing per game. He has only thrown four interceptions and been sacked four times.

"He's got an unbelievable arm, too, but one of the things that sets him apart, I think, is he's so quick getting rid of the football, knowing where to go to the different spots," Vikings coach Mike Zimmer said. "He really is a Hall of Fame kind of quarterback."

CENTER OF ATTENTION

The Vikings have a long history of excellence at the center position, dating to the arrival of eventual Pro Football Hall of Fame member Mick Tingelhoff in the franchise's second season.

Sassy Sisters prove that teamwork makes the dream work

by Blue Chen-Fruean
Samoa News Correspondent

While they weren't able to bring home the gold from the 2017 Teuila Volleyball Tournament held last week in Apia, Samoa, members of the Sassy Sisters Volleyball Club have no reason to hang their heads.

After all, the newly established team was participating in their first ever international competition and their lone loss was at the hands of their older sisters and mentors - The Originals - who won the championship trophy for the second year in a row.

The Sassy Sisters is led by president Jayleen Chun who told Samoa News that the trip was memorable and although they didn't win the title, "We did great and I felt that we won too!"

The Originals, the only other local team besides the Sassy Sisters who played in last week's tournament, handed the Sassy Sisters their only loss after narrowly defeating the younger divas in two straight sets 15-14; 15-14.

The Sassy Sisters was coached by Josie Afu Muasau and members include secretary Valentana Faumuina, team captain Arykah Fonoti, and players Runi Talaifaga, Uni Va'atausili Medici Tanielu, Gogo Hope Sakaria, Lima Schwenke, and Cece Siale Iavai.

"Congrats to our Originals Sisters for taking the title again, you all deserved it," Chun said, adding that "it was great to see and play with all our other fa'afafine sister teams from Samoa and New Zealand."

Playing in the Queens Division of the 2017

Teuila Volleyball Tournament was the Sassy Sisters' inaugural debut as a team and they were one of eight other fa'afafine teams who competed in the tournament, which coincided with the annual Samoa Fa'afafine Pageant that brought many other fa'afafines to Apia, including a delegation from the Society of Fa'afafine in American Samoa (SOFIAS) - who came out to support the Queens Division of the tourney.

The Sassy Sisters Volleyball Club, according to Chun, was established earlier this year by individuals who came together to form the team - all with a common interest in supporting the sport of volleyball, and the fellowship of fa'afafine sisterhood.

Coach Josie Afu provided weekly training and workshops for the new team to work on improving their basic skills and team dynamics, in preparation for the Teuila Tournament

During the tournament, the SSVC went undefeated in their pool which included three other teams. They didn't drop a single set in match-ups against the Vaiula Girls, Stars of Samoa, and the New Zealand Divas.

In the quarterfinals, Team Sassy won two straight sets against the Vailele Shakers, and another two straight against the Stars of Samoa in the semi-finals.

In the championship game, the Sassy Sisters faced the only other fa'afafine team from American Samoa, The Originals, who are like sisters to the SSVC and practice together weekly, according to Chun.

Set for encore, Cow-boys’ Prescott ignores ‘sophomore slump’

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — Dak Prescott stared blankly at a reporter who asked how many times the new face of the Dallas franchise had heard the term “sophomore slump” in recent months after one of the best rookie seasons for a quarterback in NFL history.

“Say again?” the reigning NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year said.

The reporter repeated the question.

“What’s that?” Prescott shot back.

Without using any words, the sudden star of America’s Team suggested there’s plenty he thinks he can do for an encore starting Sunday night against the New York Giants after leading the Cowboys to the best record in the NFC.

And since Prescott likes to talk about winning, that’s probably the best place to start since the Cowboys followed their franchise-record 11-game winning streak and 13-3 season with a divisional playoff loss at home to Green Bay last January.

“All I’ve ever known is hard work, and hard work pays off,” said Prescott, who tied the rookie QB record of 13 wins set by Pittsburgh’s Ben Roethlisberger in 2004.

“That’s what I did in this offseason as I’ve done every offseason in my career.”

He also signed endorsements, attended packed youth football camps bearing his name and celebrated from the second row when his alma mater, Mississippi State, ended UConn’s record 111-game winning streak at the women’s Final Four in Dallas.

While recognizing his rapid rise to fame, Prescott never missed a chance to explain why it was happening. That also meant reminding everyone that the winning and the touchdowns and the triple-digit passer rating had to continue as well.

“Everything,” offensive coordinator Scott Linehan said when asked what Prescott needed to do to improve on his remarkable debut.

“I’m being honest. He’s also very honest with himself. He works on his fundamentals and takes the coaching like no one else in my opinion and works on a daily basis to get better.”

Prescott was a fourth-round draft pick and third-string quarterback when backup Kellen Moore broke an ankle in training camp last year. He’d already had two impressive preseason outings when Tony Romo broke a bone in his back in the third exhibition game.

A year later, Prescott appears to be the next 10-year starter after Romo, who retired and went into broadcasting after having to accept during the season that he wasn’t getting his job back.

Sudden change? Depends on who’s talking.

“I feel like by the time Sunday comes last year to this year, it’s the same,” Prescott said. “My coaches do a good job preparing me. Obviously I’m a much better player, much more experienced. So that takes care of itself. But for the most part I’m going to be prepared for the game when Sunday hits.”

The Giants beat Prescott and the Cowboys twice last season, first in what was a solid outing for his debut and then in by far Prescott’s worst game, a 10-7 Dallas loss that ended the 11-game run.

Prescott wasn’t the only record-setting rookie for the Cowboys last season. Ezekiel Elliott led the NFL with 1,631 yards rushing as the fourth overall pick, and both benefited from one of the league’s best offensive lines.

Elliott will play the opener, but his status beyond that is in doubt after the appeal of his six-game suspension over a domestic violence case was denied. If Elliott serves the suspension this season, the first question will be how Prescott functions without him.

“I think one of the best things Dak does is he has a lot of confidence in the guys around him, he communicates really well and puts us all in good position,” 15th-year tight end Jason Witten said.

“I just think it’s just trust our system even more.”

Ask Prescott about the notion that opponents now have a year’s worth of video on him, and he’ll respond that he has the same.

Ask him what he wants to accomplish after a dizzying list of impressive numbers last season, and the answer will be almost as short as the one about a sophomore slump. Prescott wants to win.

“You take any player that will put the time in, he’ll improve,” owner and general manager Jerry Jones said. “He’s done an extraordinary amount of work, and his improvement has been dramatic. It wouldn’t be at all wrong to expect a better Dak.”

So don’t even ask about a sophomore slump.

Texas QB Buechele a game-day decision with sore shoulder

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas starting quarterback Shane Buechele did not throw in practice again Thursday because of a bruised shoulder and coach Tom Herman says his status against San Jose State will be a game-day decision.

Buechele is 5-8 in his career as a starter. He threw for 375 yards and two touchdowns last week in a season-opening loss to Maryland. He finished the game but hasn’t thrown in practice since. If Buechele can’t play Saturday, freshman Sam Ehlinger will start with wide receiver Jerrod Heard as the emergency option for the Longhorns. Heard is a former quarterback who started much of the 2015 season when Texas finished 5-7.

Buechele set a Texas freshman record last season with nearly 3,000 yards passing and 21 touchdowns.

Patriots fans cheer 5th banner, boo commissioner Goodell

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. (AP) — Before the New England Patriots could show off their latest Super Bowl banner, they needed to do some minor renovations to their home stadium.

The team had run out of room on the facade where their first four banners were displayed. So signs were raised. Lights were moved. And the banners recognizing the 2001, 2003, 2004 and 2014 titles were shrunk a bit to make room for a fifth that owner Robert Kraft declared “unequivocally the sweetest.”

Everything was back in position Thursday night at the NFL’s festive season opener, when the Patriots celebrated their fifth Super Bowl championship in a ceremony before their game against the Kansas City Chiefs.

Flo Rida performed on an end zone stage, and Boston-grown actor Mark Wahlberg served as master of ceremonies for the banner ceremony. Five half-ton replicas of the Vince Lombardi Trophy were stationed on the field, and players from the first four championships ducked out from behind them with the real thing.

Receiver Julian Edelman — who was injured and lost for the year during the exhibition season — got one of the biggest cheers of the night when he came out with the trophy from 2014.

A lot has happened since then.

On their way to the Super Bowl that year, Patriots quarterback Tom Brady was accused of orchestrating a scheme to illegally deflate footballs used in the AFC championship game. NFL

Commissioner Roger Goodell suspended Brady four games; the punishment remained in limbo as the scandal that came to be known as “Deflategate” stretched into a third season before it was ultimately upheld in the federal courts.

Despite losing Brady for a quarter of the regular season — or perhaps inspired by it — the Patriots returned to the Super Bowl. Then, after falling behind 25 points in the third quarter, Brady rallied them to the first overtime victory in Super Bowl history.

Fans held up signs featuring the 28-3 score, and while testing their scoreboard on Thursday afternoon, the Patriots posted the score and time of the most ominous deficit from that game .

The crowd reveled in the highlights from the Super Bowl, and they booed lustily when Goodell was briefly shown yucking it up with Chiefs owner Clark Hunt on the sideline during warmups. A website distributed thousands of towels featuring Goodell’s face adorned with a clown nose, and many fans also had T-shirts with the caricature.

The commissioner watched the game not from Kraft’s suite, as he did in a preseason game that was his first Patriots game since “Deflategate,” but from another luxury box, the NFL said. Asked about reports that Goodell would not be pictured on the scoreboard during the game , so as not to rile up the fans, a Patriots spokesman said the team did not typically show people in suites on the scoreboard.

Dormady's early results encouraging for No. 25 Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — If Tennessee's Quinten Dormady improves as much throughout the season as he did over the course of his first career start, the Volunteers won't have to worry about their quarterback situation.

After winning a preseason competition with redshirt freshman Jarrett Guarantano, Dormady struggled initially but came on strong down the stretch to spark the 25th-ranked Volunteers to a 42-41 double-overtime victory over Georgia Tech. The performance should give the junior quarterback a confidence boost heading into Tennessee's home opener Saturday with Football Championship Subdivision program Indiana State (0-1).

His second-half surge certainly caught the attention of his teammates. "I'm really proud of him, how he handled himself," running back John Kelly said.

Dormady said he wasn't particularly nervous about making his first start, but the statistics show how much he improved as the game wore on.

After going 8 of 20 for 52 yards in the first half, Dormady was 12 of 17 for 169 yards with two touchdown passes the rest of the way.

Tennessee coaches had talked during the preseason about the possibility of playing both Dormady and Guarantano in the opener, but Dormady said he didn't look over his shoulder or worry about the possibility of getting pulled from the game during his early struggles.

"I wasn't focused on that," Dormady said.

"I was just focused on executing. It took us a little while to get going, but when we finally did hit (our) stride, it felt pretty good out there."

Dormady never did get removed from the game, and he eventually rewarded the coaching staff's faith in him.

He led Tennessee (1-0) to touchdowns on five of its last six possessions, including a game-tying 93-yard drive in the final five minutes of regulation. He never got sacked and didn't commit any turnovers.

"You always look at a starting quarterback like a starting pitcher in baseball," Tennessee coach Butch Jones said.

"You're gauged upon your win-loss record. We made the plays when we needed to. He put the ball in some locations that he needed to. Also, his footwork, his movement in the pocket (and) some things like that, he knows he needs to make the progress and progression from game one to game two."

His performance should provide some hope that Tennessee has found a capable replacement for Joshua Dobbs, who started 35 games over the last four seasons before getting drafted in the fourth round by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I can't say enough about Quinten," offensive tackle Brett Kendrick said.

"He always had his composure. He reminded me a lot of Dobbs (in that he) was a calming presence on the sideline. There's no worry in him. You always want someone like that in a quarterback."

Dormady's emergence in the second half and overtime was particularly noteworthy because it came without Jauan Jennings, who started the season as Tennessee's top returning receiver.

Jennings got injured in the first half of the Georgia Tech game and is out indefinitely.

Jennings' absence will force Dormady to develop a rhythm with Tennessee's other receivers.

He already appears to have found a favorite target in Marquez Callaway, who caught four passes for 115 yards and two touchdowns against Georgia Tech.

Tennessee's matchup with Indiana State should help Dormady build that trust with receivers while also correcting mistakes he made in the opener.

"For me, I think it's just making the easy throws," Dormady said.

"That comes with me and the receivers, just with our timing and things. ... We'll get things fixed. That will probably be the biggest jump. We've just got to make the routine plays."

The Indiana State game also should provide an opportunity for Guarantano to make his debut. Jones said "we have two very, very quality quarterbacks" and that both would play Saturday.

Television cameras during the Georgia Tech game showed Guarantano sitting apart from Dormady on the sideline without wearing a headset, leading to questions about how the redshirt freshman was handling the backup role.

Guarantano hasn't been made available to the media this week, but Jones spoke out in the redshirt freshman's defense and noted his backup quarterbacks typically don't wear headsets during games.

"They'll continue to compete" Jones said.

"I know there was a lot out there with Jarrett, and all I can tell you is Jarrett's a good teammate. He's always been a good teammate. He's a competitor and wants to be it there but also has a tremendous amount of respect for everyone in this program and the players."

Despite falling short of capturing the title, Chun said the team is content with their performance.

"Reaching the championship game was a far-fetched goal for the team but with hard work and diligent preparations, the SSVC was able to reach it," she said. "The camaraderie of the Queens Division was at an all-time high with so many teams participating and the experience was a 'once in a lifetime' one for this new team."

The SSVC is grateful to all the family, friends, and supporters who donated and helped fund the team's travel and uniforms during the various fundraisers held prior to the trip.

"We hope and pray for continued support as we will continue to play in local tournaments and plan to attend the Independence Day and Teuila Tournament in Apia next year," Chun concluded.

Congratulations Sassy Sisters and The Originals!

Gurley ready to bounce back in upgraded Rams offense

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — As Todd Gurley endured a slog of a sophomore season, the running back kept hearing one thing over and over again.

It had nothing to do with the Rams' record in their first season back in Los Angeles or the fate of his head coach. To Gurley, it seemed as if fans only wanted to talk about the impact his struggles were having on their fantasy teams.

"That's the only thing you hear these days, fantasy football," Gurley said, trying to hold back a laugh. "Don't nobody care about anything else anymore." If Gurley can continue where he left off in a promising preseason, starting with the opener Sunday against the Indianapolis Colts, those conversations could be much more pleasant.

Gurley rushed for 40 yards and one touchdown in two preseason games and also caught two passes for 22 yards, with his 12 carries tripling his workload from the previous preseason. After not rushing for 100 yards in any game and failing to produce at least 4.0 yards per carry in 14 of 16 starts last season, Gurley showed signs of a return to the aggression, power and speed that defined his successful rookie year when he rushed for 1,106 yards and 10 touchdowns in just 13 games.

"You have a year that you're not pleased with, for sure you got to come back the next year even harder," running back Malcolm Brown said.

More importantly, the Rams showed signs of improvement around Gurley, who ran for 885 yards and six touchdowns last season. It was evident on the offensive line, at the skill positions, in scheme and coaching.

New head coach Sean McVay brings a proven record of offensive success from his time as offensive coordinator in Washington. Center John Sullivan and left tackle Andrew Whitworth are substantial upgrades up front in terms of both experience and performance. Wide receiver Sammy Watkins can deliver the big play, with Robert Woods as a dependable target to move the chains. Rookies Cooper Kupp and Gerald Everett added depth and talent in the passing game.

All those additions are intended to help second-year quarterback Jared Goff justify his status as a No. 1 overall draft pick, but Gurley could be the bigger beneficiary if opposing defenses can't focus entirely on him with eight or nine-man boxes. "We got too many good players," Brown said. "We're deep at receiver, deep at tight end. Our offensive line is doing a great job, so it's going to spread a lot of things out for Todd."

"There's a lot of guys that I feel like can step up and be that go-to guy," Gurley said. "I feel confident that we can all come together as one and make it happen."

Gurley is upbeat about his chances to bounce back. He expects it to manifest across the offense as whole and in the win column. Anyone that drafted Gurley in fantasy football should also benefit.

"We just got that confidence about us," Gurley said. "I'm excited. I'm very, very excited. I'm pretty sure everybody is anxious to see how we're going to do, just like we are."

Morton up to task of directing Jets' young, new-look offense

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. (AP) — John Morton spent the entire spring and summer shouting.

The New York Jets' first-time offensive coordinator still has plenty of voice left, though, even after all the yelling — the encouraging words for jobs well done by his players and the not-so-family-friendly jabs for mistakes and missteps.

Morton has certainly made his presence felt, and heard.

He has, after all, been waiting for this moment his entire coaching career.

And he's prepared to tackle what is widely considered one of the toughest tasks in the NFL this season: making the Jets competitive on offense.

"I feel really confident," Morton said Thursday. "Otherwise, I shouldn't be sitting here."

Morton, who turns 48 later this month, acknowledged that he hasn't gotten a lot of sleep lately. His tired eyes are proof, as is the scruff on his cheeks that's mixing into his graying goatee.

There's little time for rest now, not with the regular season about to kick off.

And certainly not with a revamped offense that has so many new and/or inexperienced players that outsiders wonder how the Jets will manage any points from week to week.

"I don't know, we'll see," Morton said of whether the Jets' offense can exceed the lowly expectations. "I just want our guys to go out and be competitive and go hard and do their job every single play and protect the ball.

"If we do that, we have a great chance of winning. I've said it before: 82 percent. You win the turnover battle, you're going to win 82 percent of your games, so I think that's what we shoot for."

Morton enters the season as a bit of a mystery man because this is his first job in the pros as an offensive coordinator.

These things we know: He runs a West Coast-style system, enjoys hard rock — Metallica, for one — and likes to get his point across.

"He brings confidence, I know that much," coach Todd Bowles said.

"He's a brash guy and I like that about him. It's one of the reasons I hired him. He's a smart guy. He gets it. He'll understand situations, and he'll make the right calls. He has everybody on the same page and I have every bit of confidence in him."

Morton was a wide receiver in college, first at Grand Rapids Community College before going to Western Michigan. He spent some time playing in the CFL and was on a few NFL teams' practice squads before turning to coaching.

He has been an offensive assistant and coached tight ends and wide receivers along the way. His bosses have included Jon Gruden, Bill Callahan and Norv Turner in Oakland, Jim Harbaugh (University of San Diego and later San Francisco), Sean Payton (New Orleans, twice) and Pete Carroll (USC).

But on Sunday at Buffalo, up in the coaches' booth at New Era Field, Morton will call the shots on offense for the first time — for real — in the NFL.

It'll also be the first time he's doing so at any level since he was USC's offensive coordinator in 2010.

"I've been prepared," Morton said. "I've been around some great coaches that have prepared me and a lot of great players that have prepared me, and I've been in a couple of big-time games, Super Bowl games. I'm fortunate enough (that) I can say that, and a lot of playoff games I've been in.

"So, I feel really comfortable going into this game calling the plays for the first time."

But it isn't exactly a cushy gig for Morton, who was hired during the offseason to replace the retired Chan Gailey.

He's got a 38-year-old journeyman quarterback in Josh McCown starting and a 31-year-old running back in Matt Forte, who's in the twilight of his career but happens to have the most career receptions of anyone on the team.

The wide receiver group is young and inexperienced, with the additions of veterans Jermaine Kearse and Jeremy Kerley in the past few days giving the Jets a couple of guys who at least casual fans have heard of other than Robby Anderson. The tight ends are expected to be used more than they were in Gailey's offense, in which the position was virtually non-existent.

But Austin Seferian-Jenkins, the projected starter, is suspended the first two games for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy and rookie Jordan Leggett, a fifth-rounder from Clemson, is dealing with a sore knee.

Nimmo homers twice, Lagares goes deep and Mets beat Reds 7-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Brandon Nimmo homered twice, Juan Lagares added a solo shot and the New York Mets beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-2 on Thursday night.

New York has won three of four and ended the Reds' three-game winning streak to open a four-game series.

Hitting in the cleanup spot, Nimmo ripped an opposite-field drive off reliever Tim Adleman in the fifth inning that touched just above the orange line on the left-field wall for a home run.

Lagares followed with a liner that traveled a bit farther into the seats, giving the Mets a 5-2 lead on their 201st homer of the year — the second highest total in club history (218 in 2016).

The next inning, Nimmo hit Alejandro Chacin's 2-2 offering out to center field to extend New York's advantage to 7-2.

Nimmo led off the second inning with a double that careened off Scott Schebler's glove in the right-field corner, advancing to third on a groundout and scoring on Dominic Smith's RBI single.

Matt Harvey was ineffective early but regrouped for the win, allowing two runs and five hits in five innings.

Harvey (5-4) remained undefeated against Cincinnati, improving to 4-0 with a 2.63 ERA in six starts.

Tyler Mahle (0-2) struggled in his third major league start, giving up three runs, six hits and four walks in four innings.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: CF Billy Hamilton (broken left thumb) was placed on the 10-day disabled list. The major league stolen bases leader was hurt attempting to bunt in the first inning of Wednesday's game against Milwaukee.

Mets: INF Wilmer Flores (broken nose) was re-examined Thursday and shut down for the season. ... INF/OF T.J. Rivera (partial tear in right elbow) will have Tommy John

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

WIFE CONCERNED ABOUT HUSBAND TALKING TO NEIGHBORHOOD KIDS

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married to “Roger” for 20 years and have two kids still at home. They are pretty independent now, but my husband was very involved in coaching and volunteering when they were younger.

Sometimes when Roger and I take walks, we run into children playing in a yard or biking up and down the block. If they initiate conversation, I’ll smile at them and respond with a quick “hi” or “nice bike” and keep walking, but my husband will stop to chat or listen to what they say. I have told him not to do that regardless of whether they seem willing. My fear is that an overprotective mom (like many of us moms) glancing out the window and seeing a middle-aged stranger talking to their child may assume the worst.

I know Roger loves kids, and we both sometimes miss the younger years when kids could be more open and talk with adults, but times have changed. This used to happen more often when we’d go swimming with our kids and other kids who were bored and not closely supervised would be looking for other people playing together to join. I used to worry then that if I wasn’t there it could be misconstrued, although my fears never came to pass.

Do you agree that adults (and especially male adults) have to be overly cautious about engaging in any communication with an unaccompanied child? -- CHANGING TIMES IN THE MIDWEST

DEAR CHANGING TIMES: I think (regrettably) that the answer to your question is yes. Because fears of molestation are so prevalent now, males do have to be more circumspect with minor children than they did years ago. Frankly, that’s a shame, because kids gain so much confidence by knowing an adult is interested in what they have to say. Consider staying with your husband during these friendly instances as a “buffer.”

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have two homes. We summer in Michigan and winter in Florida. To save money on maintenance, I’d like to sell the house in Michigan and move permanently to Florida. My husband doesn’t want to be in Florida during the summer, but he also does not want to be in Michigan in the winter. He won’t make a decision, but he leans toward living in Michigan full time.

Because I don’t like living up north in the winter, I have told him I’ll be staying all year in Florida starting in January to see how it is. He plans to return to Michigan. Our Florida home is older, so to come out ahead financially, we would need to sell our place in Michigan in order to buy a newer one in Florida. Any ideas on how this could be settled? -- WARMER WEATHER

DEAR WARMER WEATHER: Your idea about living for a “trial year” in Florida isn’t a bad one. After spending a hot, humid summer there, you might change your mind about relocating permanently. You state that your reason for wanting to sell the Michigan home is you want a newer one than the place you presently own down south. Perhaps you could satisfy yourself AND your spouse by simply spending some money to update the old one a bit. Please consider it.
